Bombs in Lingg's Cell

CHICAGO, November 7. The cells of seven condemned murderers in the county jail were searched today, and six dynamite bombs were found hidden away in a wooden box which was concealed in a crack of masonry in the corner of Lingg's cell. Some time ago Sheriff Matson directed his cells and clean out the cells of the seven doomed prisoners, and to-day was set for the execution. Wednesday evening the sheriff's deputies were to be given to the public and the morning the entire force of deputy sheriffs are to guard the jail for safety. It was shortly after 4 o'clock when Lingg and Engel gave the first notice to the convicts in cage and search their cells. Engel's cell was first entered and thoroughly explored, and clothing hanging around the cell searched, but beyond a few empty cigar boxes, tract, books and papers, nothing was found.

Then the deputy sheriffs entered Lingg's cell which is former occupant planted himself in the corner of his cell to see what they would find. Lingg watched them, with eagle eye. He was pale as death and trembled like an aspen leaf, as the searchers moved around in the little room. Suddenly two of the three men on the outside jumped out to the corridor, with the third man held at arm's length, a small wooden box which he carefully carried to the jail office and set it on Jailer Foltz's desk. The box contained six pieces of gunpowder, each about six inches in length, filled with some heavy substance and plugged at both ends. Jailer Foltz picked up one which was closed at one end with a nail, and one of the officers pronounced it a veritable dynamite bomb. Just then Sheriff Matson arrived at the jail and ordered that the dangerous weapons be replaced in the box and watched for an explosion, though there was no doubt as to the result of the examination. Then the search was continued, but beyond a quantity of rubbish, nothing was found.

Cells Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4 were searched in the order named, but no contraband articles of any kind were found. It was decided however that it was best to change the cells and accordingly four apartments on the lower tier were cleaned out. Number 6, which is directly in front of the entrance to the jail, is two rows of iron stanchions in which space three officers stand night and day, and was selected for Lingg's reception and there the bomb manufacturer was locked up. He was given his bible, books and writing material, but everything else was sent from him. He immediately sat down and began to write, keeping at work until a late hour in the night.

Cells Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4 were also removed to new cells.

Sheriff Matson was questioned on the subject during the afternoon. He was very reticent, but readily admitted the truth of the affair. They had no reason to doubt the search at the time, he said, to be simply a precautionary measure. Sunday was selected as a day when the conversation would take less a spectacular than on a week day. In view of the above mentioned precautionary measures will now be taken. Prisoners will not be allowed to receive as much as formerly, and the number of callers will be restricted. Newspaper men will be allowed to visit any of the condemned, and if any interviews are given out the source will be traced. The presence of jail officials at interviews of visitors with the prisoners will be insisted on. No letters or other communications will be delivered until they are carefully examined. A special man will watch the prisoners from this time on.

Owing to the sensation of the day there was a large crowd around the jail. There was a rumor current early in the afternoon that Lingg had committed suicide, and a number of persons called at the office of the sheriff to learn the truth of the report. Sheriff Matson was kept busy answering questions, and no letters or other communications will be delivered until they are carefully examined. A special man will watch the prisoners from this time on.

Lingg Attempts Suicide

CHICAGO, November 7.—Lingg, the condemned Anarchist, attempted suicide this afternoon. He was found in a pool of blood in his cell, with a portion of his throat bitten away. He was removed to the hospital, where it was found that he had severed the jugular vein. He will die.

More Bombs Found.

CHICAGO, November 7.—It is reported that the police have discovered eleven dynamite bombs, which were secreted in the house of Captain Schaack near the west end of Fullerton avenue. Deputy Sheriff Power was seen to-day and he says he knows nothing about the matter. The bombs are said to be of the same pattern as those found in Lingg's cell.

Another Cleaning.

CHICAGO, November 7.—Hon. A. Jewell was closely questioned to-night as to the possibility of a number of bombs having been secreted in the Anarchists' cells. He said that such a thing was impossible, as he felt confident that no one could get in the cells without the knowledge of the jailers. He said that he had been in the cells himself a number of times, and that he was positive that no bombs were secreted there. The jailers are changed every day, and it would be impossible for any one to get in the cells without the knowledge of the jailers.

Engel's Revelation.

CHICAGO, November 7.—Engel is reported to have said to representatives of the press association this afternoon that his letter to the public would have been a different one from that which he wrote of from Lingg's cell. He said that he was not guilty of the crime for which he was convicted, and that he was innocent of the charge of murder. He said that he was not guilty of the crime for which he was convicted, and that he was innocent of the charge of murder. Every republican should vote the straight ticket to-day. It is a clean ticket, fairly nominated.

It is almost impossible to surmise what the result of to-day's election in Arapahoe county will be. The motto of the three leading newspapers seems to be "May the best men win."

H. I. Reid has demonstrated his fitness for the position of county surveyor by the very able way in which he has performed his duties in the past two years. He is a competent surveyor an honest man and a faithful official.

The question to be decided in New York city to-day, is shall honest government be maintained, or shall the administration of justice be placed in the hands of a man in sympathy with all that is corrupt in politics.

The remarks of the Rev Dr Marquis of Chicago against the communist on the Knights' ticket in his sermon on Sunday were very sensible and directly to the point. There has been entirely too much sentimentalism and false sympathy manifested towards these self-convicted murders.

Jay Jackson, the republican candidate for sheriff, has been deputy sheriff for five years and is thoroughly familiar with the duties of his office. He is to good [illegible] if the county [illegible] would elect in the county a faithful, energetic and intelligent officer. He should be elected by a large majority. Every republican should vote for him.

The reception of Mr Joseph Chamberlain, the distinguished English parliamentarian, in New York yesterday is in striking contrast with that accorded to that representative of American pugilism John L. sullivan at London. It is not often that residents of the great metropolis are so favored with the presence of such renowned Americans as Mr Buffalo Bill and Mr John L. sullivan.

Our editorial of Sunday morning said "The county commissioners of this county have the power as I have used it to grant license to all who wish to sell liquor outside of corporate limits." Some of our readers understood this to refer to the present board which has never used all requests for licenses to sell liquor outside of a reference was to a previous board.

Mr Reuben Berrey deserves the unanimous support of the republican party. The most important duties of his office are of a business character and his superior qualifications for such duties are well known in this community. A few days ago we gave his record as a teacher and as a director in school districts which are testimony of his eminent fitness to discharge the educational duties of his office.

Mr George William Curtis in Harper's Weekly in commenting upon the speech of Mr Elihu Root, in the republican county convention which we published in full a few days ago, said

The speech of Mr. Elihu Root, nominating the Republican ticket of Mr Morton and Mr. Marcine was in the original republican key. That the spirit and purpose which Mr Root so fitly and eloquently expressed governed the action of the republican party, it would not have been defeated in 1884. Mr Root's speech was so good and the action of the convention, so sensible that together they make the most hopeful incident in the republican annals of New York since the defeat of Mr Blaine. If they could be accepted as truly representative of the party as undoubtedly they were supposed what Mr Root wished to be true of the party, its prospects would be very promising. There has been nothing said during the whole campaign on the style so manly and statesman like as the few remarks of Mr Root at the city convention.

The elections to-day in some of the western states will attract more than passing interest. Aside from the bearing which they may have upon the great national contest of next year, they possess certain peculiar features which have aroused a deep interest throughout the country. In Maryland the republicans, assisted by a large number of influential college-bred democrats, have waged a fearless fight upon the powerful democratic ring of that state headed by Senator Gorman. The prohibitionists which Governor Forker of Ohio has attained by reason of his utterances concerning President Cleveland will make the result

The Federation of Labor and the Chicago Defection from the Knights of Labor.

In the interim course of events the Knights of Labor have met with a great defeat by which all will suffer. Once a year or two strong they grow large enough to make their power important, for the same reason that power is respected. For moderation in the hour of success with all this comes the strength of the order and the jealousy of unworthy rivals. Workmen's Powerful leaders as a growth power has much less consideration, as there is a succession from the ranks. As the Knights of Labor with the last year have lost many skilled members, the American Federation of Labor has gained accordingly.
